Officer's trial concludes; jury starts its deliberations

The fate of disgraced former West Sacramento police officer Sergio Alvarez went into the hands of 12 jurors on Friday.

Alvarez was arrested a year ago and charged with sexually assaulting five women "under color of authority" while on patrol in the city. The alleged victims tended to be people in marginal situations — prostitutes or those with drug or alcohol problems.

Prosecutors say Alvarez detained women he found while patrolling the West Capitol Avenue area during the graveyard shift, pressuring them for sex in exchange for not arresting them.

Defense attorney J. Toney has conceded misdoings by the officer — including "consensual" sex while on duty with three of the alleged victims — but has argued that the charges of rape and sexual assault are made up by unreliable witnesses hoping to cash in on a civil lawsuit against the department.

As the News-Ledger went to press, a verdict on the 27 felony charges had not yet been announced.

Teen injured when gun goes off in car

Four teens face charges after an apparent accidental shooting inside a parked car on February 7.

"Safety, Service, Security": that's the motto of the California Highway Patrol.

The men and women officers who uphold that motto begin their careers right here in West Sacramento. Located on 457 acres off of Reed Avenue in the city's northwest, the present CHP Academy began construction in 1974 and graduated its first class of recruits in 1976.

The Academy Commander, Captain Chuck King, recently invited the News-Ledger to tour the property. Judging by the number of cars in the parking lots, it was apparent upon arrival that the Academy is a major employer. Approximately two hundred part-time and full time employees work at the site, including sixty non-uniformed CHP employees. These people do everything from administrative tasks to cooking in the kitchens.

Next to the lobby in the headquarters is the recently completed CHP museum. It houses three motorcycles from years' past as well as exhibits detailing the history of the Highway Patrol. Clearly evident are tradition, pride in service, and an esprit de corps among C.H.P. staff.

Step through the administration building, and you'll find a central courtyard and the badge-shaped, five-pointed Memorial Fountain. The fountain which pays tribute to the 225 California Highway Patrol Officers that have been killed in the line of duty since the organization was founded in 1929. (The most recent officers to give their lives were Officers Juan Gonzalez and Brian Law, partners and friends who graduated together in 2008 from the academy. The pair died Monday morning in a crash while responding to a call near Fresno.)

Every week, in a tradition that binds the generations of graduating classes to each other, cadets polish the brass name plaques that are affixed to the sides of the fountain.

King led News-Ledger reporters toward the dormitories, which accommodate recruits during their 27-week training session. Nearby were classrooms, a gymnasium, and even a PX (a market). Facing the courtyard is a dining commons that can seat 400 people at a time. Some two hundred cadets in two training classes are presently at the school.

"We're a completely self-contained facility," King says. "The cadets live here for the duration of their training. And we are the only CHP Academy in the state. A lot of people are surprised at that. Since 1976, every officer you see working the road has gone through this academy."

Inside the classroom was an amphitheater with rows of seats perched high above each other. Instructors in the well of the room supervised the class. Cadets looked on intently as two of their peers demonstrated how they would conduct a hypothetical accident investigation.

A rifle range, a pistol range, a helipad, and a running track, are just some of the facilities beyond the main campus buildings. But the pride of the Academy is its Emergency Vehicle Operations Course, or EVOC. This is a set of specialized tracks that allow cadets to practice everything from wet-weather driving to high-speed maneuvers.

One of those driving courses is a "skid pad"

Commie-hating army recruit showed up with a plan

A few weeks ago, I was out golfing with some of my college fraternity brothers and while waiting for our turn to tee off on the back-nine, one of them said to me, "I hear you ended up going to Vietnam. What was that like?"

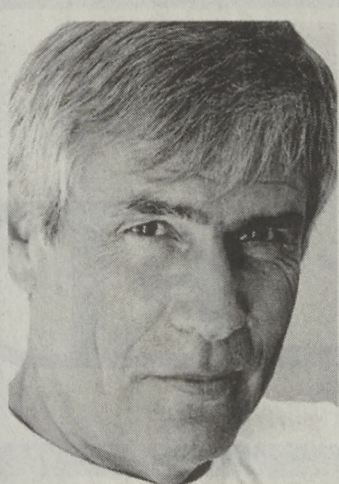

"Oh," I said, "there was good and bad in it like everything else I guess. So, you didn't have to go?"

"No, thankfully I injured my knee playing basketball about a year before I was drafted and I didn't pass the physical. And I can still remember how happy I was about that on the bus ride back to Sacramento."

As our conversation continued, I found myself thinking back to the long ago day that I took my Army physical. The year was 1968 and there were anti-war demonstrators all over the place as the bus I was in crawled up to the United States Army Induction Center in Oakland, California, where I and hundreds of other young men were scheduled to receive our Army physicals.

When I was finally allowed to get off the bus, I soon found myself among a dozen or so of the more vocal demonstrators. They were carrying assorted signs and chanting, among other things, "Hell no, we won't go!" As I tried my best to push and shove my way into the building, the guy in front of me suddenly took a swipe at one of the demonstrators and shouted a number of unprintable epithets at her.

"Damn commie!" he concluded, spitting in her direction.

Once inside, we were quickly formed into groups and told to follow one of the painted lines on the concrete floor. My group's line was yellow and we soon found ourselves at Station One, Processing.

"My name's Ken," said my new, commie-hating companion, offering his hand for me to shake. "What's yours?"

After I told him my name he asked me where I was from. Before I could answer, we were herded into a large room full of ancient classroom desks and told to take a seat and keep the noise down. On each of the desks was a large stack of papers and a soldier with a no-nonsense voice began explaining how we were supposed to fill them out.

Everyone except Ken, who was seated in front of me, seemed to take this task very seriously. He messed around with a few of the papers, but left the rest of them untouched.

"You better hurry up," I finally suggested to him.

"No sweat," he said confidently, "I won't be getting past the general examination room, which is the next station."

"How do you know that?" I asked with interest.

"I've been here before," he explained, "and more than once, too."

"Really?"

"Yeah, I'm an old pro at flunking my physical."

I wanted to ask him how one manages to do that, but we were suddenly ordered to gather up all our paperwork and begin following the yellow line again.

Sure enough, just as Ken had said, the next station turned out to be a large, cold examination room where we were told to strip down to our shorts and form a big circle. I thought it was a little strange that everyone but Ken took off their socks and I decided to bring it to his attention.

"I don't want to gross everyone out," he explained matter-of-factly.

Then a single, obviously bored-to-death doctor in a white coat stepped into the room and began strolling around the inside of the circle. On his first trip around the room, he haphazardly checked everyone's eyes, throats and necks. Then he reversed his direction and began examining feet. One of the young men he passed yelled out, "Hey, I'm missing a toe here! Doesn't that make me 4-F?"

"Afraid not," said the doctor without even bothering to look up as he continued inspecting feet.

When he finally came to me and Ken, he angrily ordered Ken to remove his socks. Ken quickly complied, and I'm absolutely sure that everyone within view of those feet will never forget that sight for as long as they live.

Ken had the worst case of athlete's foot I, and apparently the doctor, too, had ever seen!

"That's disgusting!" exclaimed the shocked physician.

"I know, sir," said Ken proudly.

"Young man," shouted the doctor, "you get those socks back on those feet and immediately report to processing for a new physical date. And I don't want to see you back here again until that mess is completely cleared up! Do you understand me?"

As Ken threw back on his socks, he happily explained to me and a couple of the other guys (to whom he was already a cult-hero) how he had actually been cultivating his athlete's foot fungus for months. He apparently had been wearing the same pair of soggy, disease-infested gym socks to bed each and every night, often with a heating pad strapped around each foot.

"Ain't nobody sending this dude to Vietnam," he said with a smile as he began shaking hands with some of his fellow draftees.

"Get the hell out of here!" shouted the doctor from across the room.

"Damn it! Now I'm going to have to find a way to get past all those worthless, hippie scum-of-the-earth commie demonstrators again," were the last words I heard Ken say.

pad" – a large stretch of pavement outfitted with pop-up sprinklers, and graded to create puddles several inches deep. The sprinklers were activated for a driving demonstration. Patrol cars used for foul-weather driving practice are deliberately equipped with "bald" tires – all the better to practice hydroplaning and emergency steering techniques on wet roads.

Captain King explained that all of the water from the sprinklers is re-circulated and recycled.

Officer Julie Saraiva, an EVOC instructor, introduced herself to reporters and promptly threw a practice car around two laps and a dozen "S" turns. At each curve she accelerated and then put on the brakes, sliding the car into one turn and then another.

Then a visiting reporter took the wheel, at one point overcorrecting in a wet skid and spinning the car 180 degrees to face the wrong way. Instructor Saraiva nevertheless gave him good marks for a first session on the skid pad.

"Skid pad" driving is just part of their total EVOC training, one of 42 total "learning domains" that a cadet must master.

The CHP is selective.

Captain King stated that over 20,000 people applied last year. The cadets now on-site represent just one percent of that number.

What quality does an applicant need most?

"The most important characteristic for a future officer is integrity, a good moral compass," said King. "After they get to the Academy, the most important thing is dedication and staying focused on the training." To patrol California's highways, C.H.P. officers must first take the road through West Sacramento.

New report analyzes possibilities in public health

From Beth Gabor
County of Yolo

Recently, the Yolo County Health Department, through the Healthy Yolo campaign, conducted a work session to assess the "threats and opportunities" around forces of change in relation to the public health system. The resulting "Forces of Change Assessment" report is now available at www.HealthyYolo.org.

Healthy Yolo is a long-term systematic effort to improve community health. Since July, Healthy Yolo has been engaging the community to share and together understand the specific health concerns and strengths of the community, prioritize public health issues, and determine goals and strategies to achieve a healthier Yolo County.

Twenty-one representatives from the local public health system attended the Forces of Change session. After identifying possible forces of change, which included social, economic, political, technological and environmental, the participants then worked to identify possible threats and opportunities for each.

and called police.

Investigators believe a handgun went off inside a car occupied by four teens age 16-17. A 16-year old male was shot in the abdomen.

The car then began driving and encountered a patrol car nearby.

"The only got to the end of the block and the cops showed up on scene," said Lieutenant Tod Sockman of the West Sacramento Police Department. "They weren't trying to hide."

All of the teens – including the injured victim, who is now recovering – say the shooting was an accident.

"One of the other kids had it and they were playing with it," said Sockman. "I think they thought it was a BB gun. They were playing with it and it went off."

The gun turned out to be reported stolen.

The teens were cited for reckless discharge of a firearm, possession of a loaded firearm in a vehicle, and possession of a stolen firearm.

The victim was treated at UC Davis Medical Center.

A used hypodermic needle was "in plain view" in the car, and the driver volunteered that there was also a BB gun inside. He and a passenger were asked to step out.

A consent search turned up heroin in the man's pants pocket, and further search turned up "numerous" syringes, both used and unused, as well as cooking tins, digital scales and other suspected drug paraphernalia. The man was arrested. His vehicle was left parked, at his request.

Feb. 17, 7:10 p.m.

An under-21 "decoy" working for an alcohol sting operation stood out in front of a market on the 1500-block of Sacramento Avenue. She asked a Lisbon Avenue man to buy her a 25-ounce of Bud Lite beer, telling him she was under 21 years old.

The man did, and gave her the beer and her change. Immediately after he drove away, he was pulled over and arrested by police.

Feb. 17, 10:30 p.m.

Police were dispatched to Halyard Drive, after the report of a "subject in a small car using drugs."

Arriving, an officer was told that the suspect had just driven off.

The officer located the suspect's car waiting at a red light, and – noting the car had expired registration tags – pulled him over as he attempted to enter the freeway. The 25-year old driver admitted his license was suspended. He was ordered out of the car.

As he exited the vehicle and started to walk back to my car," reported one of at least two officers on the scene, "he quickly dove into his car and grabbed an object and threw it over the fence." The officers handcuffed him.

One said the item had been a drug pipe, which could still clearly be seen, because it was a chain link fence.

The man was booked.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The West Sacramento Police Department is undergoing a transition in its data management. Because of this, we currently have access to many of the department's arrest reports, but not to the logs of calls for service and reports of crime.

Responding to an inquiry from the News-Ledger, a spokesman said the department hopes for a solution in early 2014.

We hope to again be able to search through more material when compiling this weekly log.

of sex, sleep and death. It is an intriguing, lively narrative that will cause you to see your dwelling in an entirely new light.

In his new book, "One Summer: America, 1927," Bryson writes that there certain seminal years when historical events seem to almost overwhelm, and 1927 was one of them. He focuses on such happenings and personalities as Charles Lindbergh and his trans-Atlantic flight, Queens housewife Ruth Snyder and the murder of her corset-salesman husband, the antics of cigar-chomping Al Capone, baseball legends Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, the flooding of the mighty Mississippi, and much more. "At Home" and "One Summer" represent exceptional historical writing and are highly recommended.

Sexual assault & domestic violence center changes name

The "Sexual Assault and Domestic Violence Center" in Yolo County has changed its name to "Empower Yolo," a spokesperson reports.

"This change is intended to more effectively encompass our philosophy of service, comprehensive programs and geographical reach of services offered by our agency - with an emphasis on the less-recognized, unincorporated areas of Yolo County," said Diana Stantz, director of community relations. "While the name of the agency has changed, our philosophy and services have not."

Empower Yolo is a non-profit dedicated to the intervention, prevention, and elimination of domestic violence, sexual assault, stalking, human trafficking and child abuse in Yolo County, she added.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

PICKS OF THE WEEK

"12 Years a Slave" (R) -- Solomon Northup was an accomplished violinist who had a relatively comfortable life with his wife and children, living in Saratoga Springs, N.Y., in the 1800s. He was a free black man, born free in the north. This movie, based on Northup's memoirs, begins with an establishing scene of him working on a plantation after he was kidnapped, shipped south and sold as a slave.

The film already is guaranteed classic status. As Northup, Chiwetel Ejiofor musters bottomless pain and disbelief without going over the edge. Director Steve McQueen manages a fine balance between the darkness of human villainy and the beauty of the world around them.

Hours (PG-13) -- Nolan (Paul Walker) and his wife Abigail (Genesis Rodriguez) rush to a New Orleans hospital because of complications with her pregnancy. In a short span, Nolan loses his wife and is presented with his newborn daughter -- who will require a respirator for the next 48 hours. Then Hurricane Katrina shows up. Then go the lights. Then the hospital is abandoned. Then there goes the rule of law.

With the recent loss of Paul Walker in a car accident, it's intriguing to see how the leading man of the "Fast & Furious" franchise could support a different kind of on-screen tension. The movie takes you for a ride, with Walker behind the metaphorical wheel, but this isn't a full-throttle thriller. Walker balances grief and joy and shock and the will to fight.

"Girl Rising" (PG-13) -- This is a collection of stories from young women around the world that are processed, acted out, filmed professionally and animated with little flourishes. The global storytelling jumps from topic to topic, continent to continent, but a few common threads exist. Stories include an account by a Haitian girl who defiantly attended school after the earthquake, even though her family could no longer afford the tuition. A host of celebrity voiceovers and visualized statistics can make things a little distracted. Still, it's a moving and valuable study of the will of girls to find their place in the world despite adversity.

"The Grandmaster" (PG-13) -- Ip Man is the revered legend of Kung Fu -- a man who, during a transformative period in China's history, made a name for himself as the undefeated master of martial arts. While he would later go on to train Bruce Lee in Hong Kong, Ip Man's story starts in southern China, where he started training at the age of 7. The film is replete with creative and engrossing fight scenes, all set to the backdrop of the foreign invasion of mainland China. It's not a quest for revenge or beat'em up action flick, but rather a swift and stunning biography of a larger-than-life warrior.

Bill Bryson was born in Iowa in 1951. He moved to Britain, where he has lived for most of his adult life. In 1995, "Notes from a Small Island" became a best-seller on both sides of the pond and even triggered a celebrated television series. "At Home," originally published in 2010, is being reissued in a special illustrated edition, while his latest book, "One Summer: America, 1927," makes its debut. This is a cause for celebration.

Shortly after Bryson moved into a former Church of England rectory in rural Norfolk, he went into a rooftop space in search of a leak. Since Victorian structures often are a collection of architectural bewilderingments, he was not surprised to find a secret space in the attic. This experience inspired "At Home," a fascinating excursion into the history behind the place we call home.

"At Home" features the room-by-room journey of discovery of his Victorian parsonage. Bryson takes the reader into the kitchen for a discussion of nutrition and the spice trade, and the bedroom for an account

In a Jiffy

I'm a Southern girl, so corn muffins and cornbread are a big part of a complete meal around our house. I have a wonderful recipe for cornbread from "scratch" when I have time to make it, usually on weekends. On weekdays, I reach for my trusty blue box of Jiffy Corn Muffin Mix.

Jiffy mixes are produced by the Chelsea Milling Company, operated by a family whose roots in the flour milling business date back to the early 1800s.

"We have been milling flour here in Chelsea for over 120 years," says company president Howdy S. Holmes.

His grandmother, Mabel White Holmes, developed and introduced the company's first prepared baking-mix product, Jiffy Baking Mix, in the spring of 1930. It now offers a variety of Jiffy mixes from muffins, brownies, cakes and frostings to pizza, pie crusts and their best-selling corn muffin mix.

The company is built on a simple recipe -- offer customers the highest-quality ingredients at the best price possible.

"I think our consumers appreciate what we do, and that's to offer value," says Holmes.

Thanks to Chelsea Milling Company's success, Holmes says he's reluctant to mess with the business model.

"Everyone's always in a hurry to change things," says Holmes. "If something works, recognize you shouldn't change it. You need to polish the system or the process from time to time, but if it works, leave it alone."

Chelsea Milling Company is a complete manufacturer. The entire operation is located in Chelsea, Mich.,

and its product is shipped out to all 50 states, as well as some foreign countries through the U.S. military.

"Anytime you outsource something, there's a profit number that doesn't get calculated. So we make our own boxes; we store our own wheat; we mill our own flour; we do our own packaging; we do our own mixing; we do our own logistics," says Holmes.

Thanks to its in-house manufacturing, Holmes says Chelsea Milling is able to save money and pass on those savings to the customer. The one area where Holmes isn't afraid to spend, however, is on his employees, who he says deserve to be paid well.

"We expect a lot from our employees. We compensate them fairly, and we expect them to participate," says Holmes. "Life is not a spectator sport, so you need to get in the game."

You can "get in the game" using this iconic corn muffin mix in this delicious recipe for Southwest Stew with Corn Dumplings.

SOUTHWEST STEW WITH CORN DUMPLINGS

Stew:

1-1/2 pounds ground beef, turkey or chicken
1 medium onion, chopped
3 cloves garlic, chopped
2 tablespoons chili powder
1 tablespoon cumin
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
1 can (6 ounces) tomato paste
1 1/2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 can (28 ounces) Rotel diced tomatoes with peppers (mild or hot)
1/2 can (15.2 ounces) whole kernel corn, drained; or 1 cup fresh or frozen and thawed, corn kernels

Corn Dumplings:

1 package Jiffy Corn Muffin Mix
1/2 can (15.2 oz.) whole kernel corn, drained; or 1 cup fresh or frozen and thawed
1 tablespoon onion powder
1 tablespoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1 egg
3 tablespoons milk

1. For the stew: Brown ground beef, onion, garlic, chili powder, cumin, salt and pepper. Drain off any excess fat. Stir in tomato paste and brown sugar; cook, stirring occasionally, for 5 minutes. Add tomatoes with green peppers, and the corn, and simmer for 10 minutes.

2. For the dumplings: Combine muffin mix, corn, onion powder, garlic powder, salt and pepper. Stir in egg and milk, and mix until blended. Drop by tablespoon on the bubbling stew. Cover and simmer 15-20 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call Priority Posting and Publishing at 714-573-1965 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Web site address listed below for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA05002568-13-1. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Do you care about Yolo County's internet service? Make your voice heard thru survey

County of Yolo

As part of a countywide strategic planning initiative to formulate a long term sustainable broadband plan, the Yolo Local Agency Formation Commission (LAFCo) is seeking feedback from Yolo County businesses and residents concerning their broadband needs and services via a survey posted on www.yolocounty.org.

The goals of this study are to determine what Internet service is currently available and where there are gaps, to identify related community goals and ultimately, to produce a strategic "roadmap" of how to best close gaps in service and achieve community objectives.

Those who live and/or work in Yolo County are encouraged to assist in this effort by completing the short online survey and by encouraging family, friends and colleagues to do the same. The survey is important because, in addition to learning about the needs of Yolo County businesses and residents, it includes a "wireline" speed test that will gather important information about Internet speeds throughout Yolo County. This speed data, currently mapped by the California Public Utilities Commission, is based on Internet provider data, which can overstate actual speeds. Gathering accurate data of actual Internet speeds is a critical step in making Yolo County communities eligible for related state and federal grant funding.

Go to www.yolocounty.org and select the Yolo Broadband Survey link.

Joke of the week:

MODERN ROMANCE

An elderly couple had just learned how to send text messages on their cell phones. The wife was a romantic type but her husband, on the other hand, was a bit gruff.

One afternoon the wife went out to meet a friend for coffee. She decided to send her husband a romantic text message.

She wrote:

"If you are sleeping, send me your dreams. If you are laughing, send me your smile. If you are eating, send me a taste. If you are drinking, send me a sip. If you are crying, send me your tears. I love you."

The husband texted back to her:

"I'm on the toilet. Please advise."
